NO HIGHER BREAD

Since Collapse of Wheat Price May Remain Same.

WILL DISCUSS MATTER TO-DAY

Wheat Went Down to $1.08 7-8 Yesterday, but Rallied to $1.10 1-4 Before Close of Market, Which Is Break of 4 Cents Since Thursday. Patten's Absence a Barish Factor.

Chicago, April 23.—Present indications are that the price of bread will not be raised. Definite action on the selling price of the staff of life is to be determined to-morrow evening at a meeting of the Master Bakers' Association.

Members of the organization predicted that the steady decline in wheat, which to-day reached the low-water mark of $1.08 7-8 for the July option, 40 cents below the highest figure of the year, is likely to influence the deliberations of the bakers, who will not countenance a raise to the consumer.

Patten's continued absence from Chicago was a factor in the general bearing influence that made itself felt in the market to-day. The Liverpool cables, after first showing a decline of 11-4 pence to 12-4 pence, came in steady to 1-8 pence higher than before the opening, and, as a result, prices shot up about 1 cent above the lower figure of yesterday to $1.10 1-2 at 1-48 at the closing. This was an unexpected turn in the market, and caused a selling stampede with some 2,500 good bushels thrown into the market.

Prices slid down rapidly, reaching the low point of $1.08 7-8, 21-4 cents below the high price of yesterday. The selling was aided by the favorable export reports from Argentina and Australia, which had exceeded the estimates for the week.

A greatly improved feeling on the buying side of all grain markets was the feature late in the session. Wheat closed firm at $1.09 1-4 for July, nearly 11-2 cents over the low point of the morning, and a little better than the Thursday close on the 4-cent break.

LECTURES ON LACES.

Miss Morris, of Metropolitan Museum, Tells of History of Fabric.

A lecture on laces was given by Miss Morris, assistant to the curator of decorative art at the Metropolitan Museum, in New York, at the residence of Mrs. Pinchot, before a select gathering of women yesterday afternoon. Miss Morris said the history of the fabric cannot be fixed with precision, as the making of lace is a development rather than an invention. The one name covers fabrics made of several materials and by two different methods, which are distinct in their origin.

This afternoon a reception will be given Miss Morris at the National Museum, in the hall used for the National gallery exhibits.
